Amador's new pact by Dec. ?

There'll be an almost entirely new cast gathered about the negotiations table when contract talks begin later this summer in the Amador Valley Joint High School District.

The negotiating team for the Amador Valley Secondary Educators Association (AVSEA) is completely new and will be headed by Rita Rowland, a social studies teacher at Amador Valley High.

Administration will be represented at the negotiating table by Jim Pinnel, a newcomer to the Breon, Galgani and Godino law firm.

Pinnel will also represent the board in contract talks with classified personnel.

Breon had handled negotiations in the past and associate Jon Hudak the talks with classified reps.

In an interview with Ms. Rowland and Carl Krause, assistant superintendent for personnel and administration rep at the table, Ms. Rowland was asked if the experiences of the past year have left a shadow of distrust over negotiations on the 1977-78 contract.

During the tumultous period prior to a settlement, charges of personnel file irregularities were issued, a court action ensued, and a strike vote was taken.

Ms. Rowland said AVSEA was striving "to overcome" the occurrences of the past.

She said the AVSEA re-opening proposal was "basically it, at this time," in reply to a question on whether the teacher unit would ask for additional items to be put on the bargaining table.

Under present contract provisions, the issue of binding arbitration of grievances cannot be re-opened for 77-78. The earliest possible day on which the issue may be discussed is May 10, 1978.

The AVSEA reopening proposal covers medical and dental benefits, cost of living increase, payment of income protection insurance, compensation for various assignments, and retirement benefits.

Krause gave no indication that Amador board members would take any expanded in-peson role at the negotiations table. He reiterated that he and Pinnel would constitute the administration board representation.

Asked if the new AVSEA officers had huddled with last year's officers, Ms. Rowland said they haven't as yet. But she said she was in the process of reading through four thick binders of negotiation and meeting minutes, notes and correspondence between various groups.

She labeled as coincidence the fact that the new officers and negotiators are largely from Amador Valley High, while last year's group was predominantly Dublin High, headed by Dublin teachers Dave Woolworth and Enoch Haga.

Krause said he could see no reason why negotiations couldn't successfully be completed by Christmas vacation. Ms. Rowland agreed.

Negotiations officially open, by mutual agreement, Aug. 31.

At a special meeting of the Amador board last week, the board presented its response to the AVSEA re-opening proposal.

The district is presenting an initial professional growth increase of .57 per cent and 3.03 per cent in step increases. The dollar totals are $21,203 and $111, 090, respectively.

The board stated in its response that "any changes in the salary schedule in terms of percentage increases will have to be discussed at a time when the fiscal situation of the district has been clarified."

Big assessment hikes, not enough for budget

Property assessments in the county shot up a whopping 14 per cent this year, but the gain still may not be enough to satisfy the county budget.

Pleasanton earned the dubious distinction of the highest leap in the Valley — a startling 21 per cent — compared to an 18 per cent increase in Livermore.

Property values in unincorporated Dublin climbed an "estimated" 15 per cent, according to the county assessor's offie.

(The community is lumped in with the rest of "unincorporated" Alameda County.)

But since county officials estimated a 15 per cent county wide hike when they offered their $440.5 million budget, the tax rate may have to rise as well.

The record budget could be financed with the existing $3.11 per $100 of assessed value tax rate, they told the board of supervisors, assuming assessments rose 15 per cent.

The difference means "a little more than a million dollars," according to assistant county administrator William Davis.

And that translates to two or three cents on the property tax rate.

At $60,000 "full cash value," each one-cent change in the tax rate means $1.32 on the taxpayer's bill.

Adding in a 20 per cent jump in the home's value puts the figure at $1.62 for each penny change.

City officials, whose budgets also are based on the aggregate property value, will have mixed emotions.

The value of real property in Pleasanton rose from $510.5 million to $618.6 million this year.

Livermore's total secured roll went from $592 million to $698 million.

Home assessments in Albany skyrocketed 28.35 per cent over last year, and shot up 23 per cent in Piedmont.

Newark homeowners face a 19.25 per cent increase, while Fremonters are looking at a 21.42 per cent jump.

Property values in Berkeley, with the highest tax rate in the county and one of the highest in the Bay Area, rose 15 per cent.

And in Emeryville, they fell .16 per cent. — by Ron Rodriguez

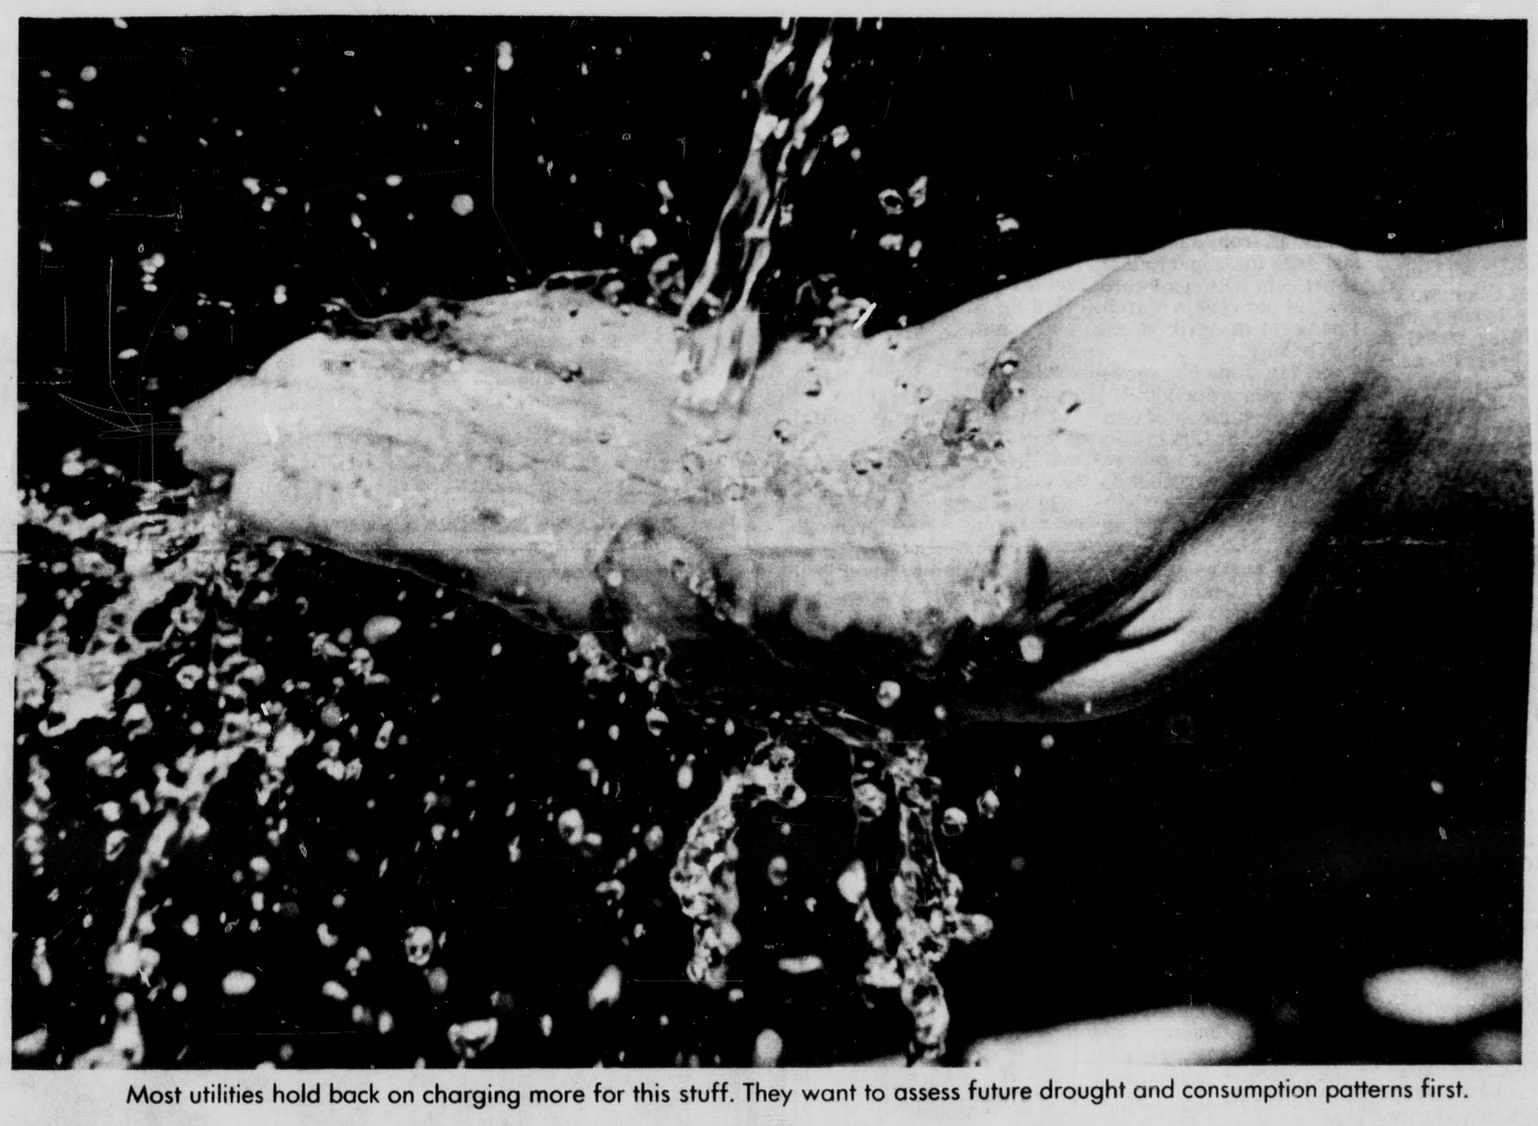
Water outlook—rates may climb if consumption falls



Most utilities hold back on charging more for this stuff. They want to assess future drought and consumption patterns first.

Valley is cutting back

If consumption goes down too far, water service rates could go up.

Officials in local water districts said they are sitting tight on raising rates until consumption and drought patterns in months to follow give them some indication which way they should jump.

The fact that most water districts had recently raised their water rates makes them reluctant to do so again .

But it makes no difference whether a utility is on mandatory or voluntary rationing. Other factors dictate finances.

"If the drought continues, it won't matter what kind of rationing program a district has. There won't be any water to worry about," said Mun Mar. He is general manager of Zone 7 water district that supplies water to Pleasanton, part of Livermore, Dublin and South San Ramon and a few other outlying areas.

Mar said Zone 7's voluntary rationing program had brought about a 30 per cent reduction in water useage since last year at this time.

Mar said although the Zone 7 board had voted not to increase rates as of January, 1977 as is normal, they might have to reconsider this stand when January, 1978 rolled around.

"The board will have to access our financial status before deciding what to do," Mar declared. "Hopefully, it will be steady as she goes."

East Bay Municipal Utilities District Board President, C.R. Hitchcock stated, "The financial picture for the utility district is a little uncertain because of the difficulty of forecasting consumption patterns for the rest of the year, but it does appear to be sound."

Hitchcock said if EBMUD was able to get a federal grant and loan for drought expenditures amounting to $7.5 million, further rate adjustments may not be necessary for the rest of the year. EBMUD's water rationing program is mandatory. They serve Contra Costa County and other portions of East Bay.

Hitchcock indicated it would be unfair to customers to drop the rationing program this early in the year solely for financial reasons.

"If we fail to keep in mind the primary purpose of providing water to our customers as the drought will permit, we might end the year with a full bank account and an empty reservoir."

This weekend

July 4 parade

Scouts host flag

An old-fashioned flag raising at 10 a.m. will herald the Fourth of July this year, with the Scouts and Explorers of Troop and Post 906 following it up with a pancake breakfast. The 7 to 11 a.m. event will be held at the LDS Church, 950 Mocho, in Livermore. The public is asked to pay a donation of $1.75 (adults), $1 (7 through 12 years of age) and 50 cents (children under seven). Proceeds will benefit the boys' summer activities.

Fair's Fourth

The biggest weekend of the 65th annual Alameda County Fair is expected as a full schedule of special attractions, exhibitions, horse racing and professional stage shows are on the docket for Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Jonny Rivers' highdiving aqua mules will debut Sunday with performances in the Theatre Walk area at 1, 3 and 5 p.m. Horse racing is on tap both Saturday and Monday, July 4, at 1:30 p.m.

Parks are open

Many East Bay Regional Parks including Sunol Regional Wilderness will feature special tours and programs this Fourth of July weekend.

All will be open, though extreme dry conditions could force shutdown of remote parklands.

At Sunol, the Old Green Barn, featuring nature exhibits, will be open all weekend. For details, see page 5.

The parade is back

Livermore's annual Fourth of July parade, sponsored this year by Livermore Area Recreation and Park District, will begin at approximately 10 a.m. Monday at Rincon School.

At 11 a.m., the Jaycees Big Wheels race will be held at Marilyn School near the park. It will be followed by a picnic lunch.

County board hears gripes on New Town

PLEASANTON —There's more to the Valley's general plan than Harlan Geldermann's New Town proposal, Alameda County supervisors learned last night.

At a public hearing at Harvest Park School on a general plan amendment for the Valley's population in 1995, the supervisors heard Jack Jones request industrial, commercial, and residential zoning for his 120 acres near Interstate 580 and Airway Boulevard.

Livermore Mayor Helen Tirsell, who was in the audience to voice opposition to New Town, told supervisors that the city is opposed to the type of zoning that Jones wants in his area.

Dublin resident Pete Hagerty put in his request for keeping the area behind Dublin Iceland as open space. He feels the portion near the skating rink could develop as commercial but the area away from the road ought to be developed as a historical center.

Several Sunol residents asked supervisors to keep the ridgeland in open space. One said Carl Nipper's residential development on the ridge would ruin the town of Sunol.

A long line of speakers repeated a great deal of earlier testimony on New Town with most of the commentary coming from opponents.

Former Livermore mayor Don Miller said the valley smog is "two-thirds to three-fourths locally generated," according to two reliable reports. Building New Town would aggrevate that condition, said Miller.

Swat on the rear brings quick arrest

PLEASANTON — A Fremont man who allegedly swatted a woman pedestrian on the rear as he rode along Pleasanton Avenue Wednesday night was quickly arrested — because the car behind him carried a police sergeant on his way to work.

Sgt. Joseph DeTata reported he was following a Volkswagon bug with four occupants about 10:50 p.m. Wednesday. The car suddenly slowed to about 15 mph and swerved to the right, when a passenger lifted himself out the window and swatted a 16-year-old Pleasanton woman pedestrian on the rear.

The woman jumped and screamed when she was struck. The car sped off with the four occupants "laughing, apparently about their conquest," DeTata reported.

The sergeant, dressed in uniform but in his own car, stopped the vehicle at St. Mary's Street. He told the suspects to report to the Pleasanton Police Department two blocks away and wait for him there.

He located the victim who said she wished to press charges.

Charles Michael Gabler, 18, of Fremont was booked on suspicion of battery. "I thought it was the thing to do at the time," police quoted Gabler as saying.

Over race

Lab couple ready to sue

Failing to achieve an out of court settlement, a racially - mixed Livermore couple say they are ready to go to federal court in a $300,000 damage suit charging UC regents with race and sex discrimination.

Roletta M. Loscher, 41, who is black, and her husband, Richard H. Loscher, 51, a white, brought the action last Septpmber.

Both protective service officers, the couple charges that they were demoted or not advanced in their jobs because of their interracial marriage.

Roletta Loscher charges she was forced to transfer from the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory because of continued racial discrimination. Abusive and threatening phone calls caused her to suffer humiliation, harassment and embarrassment, she claims.

A superior told her the Lab has a policy against hiring women and minorities "because of their concern over the possibility of such racially mixed relationships occurring," the suit alleges.

She held the rank of sergeant about 12 months before being demoted to protective service officer Oct. 31, 1974, the suit said. Because she is black and her husband is white, the suit alleges the university suspended her without pay as a protective service officer.

The suspension was later lifted, but her requests for more desirable job assignments were denied. She was advised not to apply for promotions "so long as her relationship with Richard Loscher continued. . .," the suit charges.

Richard Loscher was suspended without pay on Oct. 22, 1974 from his sergeant's job, the suit says. He allegedly was demoted a week later because he refused to resign.

He has since been denied an opportunity to regain his sergeant's job and was told not to apply for future promotions while his relationship with Roletta Loscher continues, the suit alleges.

The court was asked to permanently enjoin any future alleged breaches of civil rights. It asks that both persons be reassigned

Long gone

"Doesn't look like much of a tree does it," asked 80-year-old Elba Leonard after he watched the "city-paid executioners" destroy the tree he grew from a walnut 50 years ago. Elba lost the eminent domain condemnation proceeding that will bring Railroad Avenue across a corner of his front yard to meet with Stanley Boulevard. "I tried to make something of my yard; the city talked of beautification but took it out," he said. "Now I'll have a street near my bedroom window." (Times photo by Neil Heilpern)

CCC budget cuts hit sheriff plan

BY JOHN VANLANDINGHAM
Lesher News Bureau

MARTINEZ — Contra Costans will have to wait longer for a sheriff's deputy and in some cases they may not get one, Capt. Harry Derum warned Thursday.

Personnel cutbacks, increasing demands for service and the rising cost of police services have combined to inconvenience county taxpayers, said Derum, commander of the sheriff's patrol division.

Right now the citizens aren't getting the level of service they received in 1972. Then it took 12 minutes from the time of the call until the deputy arrived, now it takes 21 minutes, explained Derum.

He said Contra Costa has the lowest manpower per population of any Bay Area sheriff's department.

Sheriff Harry Ramsay has asked for 11 more deputies, but the coounty adminstrator's staff has listed them in the budget as a policy item.

That means it must be okayed by the Board of Supervisors which has already announced it will trim the $252 million budget.

"That's the kiss of death," Derum stated.

"Even if we get any number of them, it will be next April or May at least before they can go oon the street," he said. That's because they have to be screened for employment and then sent to the police academy first.

Ramsay's request will cost $226,000 to add 11 deputies to two new beats, oone in the San Ramon Valley and the other in the El Sobrante - Richmond area.

That includes three new sergeants for supervision Ramsay added that there are only two sergeants supervising the entire county on each shift now.

Budget cutbacks last year kept Sheriff Ramsay from replacing two deputies and several clerks and dispatchers.

To avoid budget - straining overtime costs, Derum had to eliminate the two-man motorcycle patrol and put those deputies on regular patrol.

So the department has a pair of trail bikes and a van sitting around gathering dust because it lacks the manpower to use them even though they were approved after several years of asking.

"'We're at the point now where the calls for services are coming in so quickly we don't have enough deputies to answer them," Derum said.

"We're having to consider a system of priorities. It may be that we will have to refuse to send a car out on such complaints as car vandalism and simply take the report by telephone if they want it for insurance purposes," he said.

to positions they would hold had they not been allegedly discriminated against, and that proper pay adjustments be made.

The Loschers also ask for $50,000 each in compensatory damages or emotional damage and $100,000 each in exemplary damages.

Lorraine Braunstein, an Oakland attorney representing the Loschers, said a certificate of readiness would be filed this week stating they are ready to go to trial. Attempts at an out of court settlement had failed, she said yesterday.

Braunstein said the case could go to trial in the next few months.

Water rate hike seen

EBMUD is expected to receive an additional 70 million gallons of supplementary water daily from the Middle River beginning in September. Other water districts are looking into the possibilities of using well-water. These alternate supplies will help lessen the possibility of increasing rates.

The Valley Community Services District (VCSD) serving Dublin and South San Ramon recently raised their water rates.

"But it was more a matter of completely revising the rate structure," said VCSD Finance Officer, Ken Morrison. "Consumers should not notice any appreciable increase on their water bills if they continue to abide by the 25 per cent reduction request."

VCSD buys their water from Zone 7 who, in turn, buys theirs from the state.

"If the state or Zone 7 raises their rates, VCSD has to follow," Morrison said.

VCSD rationing is voluntary.

Doug McCloud, water superintendent for the City of Pleasanton, said he did not foresee any rate increase this year. Pleasanton buys its water from Zone 7 but does have recourse to water wells, he said.

McCloud said their voluntary rationing program had resulted in a 22 per cent reduction from January of last year to January, 1977; 11 per cent between Februarys; 24 per cent in March; 4 per cent in April; 46 per cent in May.

"So far, June has shown a 20 per cent reduction."

Dan Lee, director of public works in the City of Livermore, said he had noticed a 30 to 35 per cent reduction in water useage with their voluntary water rationing program. Livermore gets the main portion of their water from California Water Service District. The balance comes from Zone 7.

Lee said he thought a further rate adjustment was being planned by California Water Services.

"Recently, they went from $0.386 cents per 100 cubic feet to $0.489 cents per 100 cubic feet, effective the latter part of June," Lee said.

Robert Tiecke, manager of California Water Service District said he did not foresee any change in more increase in rates or a change from voluntary to mandatory rationing.

"It's hard to project since there are so many factors involved," Tiecke said.

He said his water district had noticed a 35 to 40 per cent reduction in water consumption.

According to a spokesman from the San Francisco Water District which serves 32 communities including Sunol, Hayward plus other local areas besides San Francisco, an additional rate increase is a possibility in the future.

"We don't know when but it will have to be done to maintain fiscal security," he said. "A 43 per cent raise went in when our mandatory rationing program became effective March 22, 1977." by Sue Vogelsanger

Snap, crackle saved

The "Jaws of Life" machine spread through the window, buckling a stuck door that firefighters couldn't open otherwise. (Times photo by Neil Heilpern)

LIVERMORE — The "Jaws of Life" machine was in town yesterday for a demonstration of crunching, ripping and spreading its way through a car door and roof to speedily rescue a make - believe auto accident victim.

This hydrolic spreading rescue tool, being eyed by the Livermore Fire Department as a future acquisition, was the object of a two day Chabot College course in auto extrication.

Instructor Mike Litvinchuk, a firefighter from San Leandro, explained to his students the 56 pound tool's "jaws" of titanium could use its 10,000 pounds of pressure per square inch to easily snap through one of the corner posts holding a roof in place. He cautioned them to let the victims of an accident know about the ensuing raspy, loud sounds that would free them in moments — often in the nick of time to save a life.

The machine can pinch to snap and spread to buckle a car door that is jammed shut, and attached to chains can free entire vehicles from entanglements.

Livermore has $2,500 in the fire department's budget that can be used toward the $6,000 machine and the Livermore firefighters' association has agreed to match another $2,500. Fire officials are now contacting civic groups, merchants and individuals who want to donate to get a "jaws of life" machine in Livermore.

Fight to keep open space

DANVILLE — A Danville homeowners' association is urgently seeking a way to prevent a choice piece of open space from falling into developers' hands.

Vera Nugent of the Sycamore Homeowners Association asked the advisory committee of the San Ramon Valley Parks and Recreation Service District (R-7) Tuesday for its help and ideas on how to acquire the site located on school district property at the Education Center off Sycamore Valley Road.

The 7.9 acre parcel goes up for sale within a month, and at this moment it appears that only housing developers will be able to meet the $200,000 price tag.

The school district had originally intended to use the area as a school site, but abandoned the idea two months ago because of a money crunch.

In her speech to the committee, Nugent voiced concern for leaving the property untouched "so that in the future there will be something left over except wall-to-wall buildings."

Committee member Joe Hirsch said R-7 was interested in buying the property, but currently has no money.

He did recommend, however, that the subdivision homeowners themselves look into the possibility of forming their own nonprofit organization which could then purchase the property and in turn give each of the members a tax write off.

If no public group or agency comes up with the asking price, the school district is then required to put the parcel out to sealed bid, which, noted the committee, would automatically jack up the price.

Livermore's big tax take

SACRAMENTO — Livermore took the lion's share of state highway and cigarette tax and auto license fee funds handed out in the Valley in June according to State Controller Kennneth Cory.

Livermore received $41,443 in highway taxes, $7,350 from the cigarette tax fund, and $47,052 in motor vehicle license fees.

Pleasanton was handed $28,614 from the highway fund, $4,707 from the cigarette tax, and $32,345 in license fees.

Alameda County garnered $778,065 in highway taxes, $27,805 from the cigarette tax, and $837,710 in license fees.

As an unincorporated community, Dublin is covered in the county's collection.

Cities and counties throughout the state received a total $33.8 million from the highway users tax fund, $4.8 million from the cigarette tax fund, and $32.4 million in motor vehicle license fees.

Parks will be open for the Fourth

Local parks are gearing up to welcome holiday crowds over the long Fourth of July weekend.

All picnicking, swimming, fishing, hiking and nature study facilities are being prepared for the large crowds that are expected. Unless exceptionally dry weather forces closing of wilder areas, all regional parklands will be open throughout the three days.

"The biggest reasons for cutting off entry to popular parks on Sundays and holidays are traffic and parking," said Chris Nelson, chief of East Bay Regional Park District Parks and Interpretation.

"Sometimes as early as noon, the roads are clogged, the parking spaces covered, and then we have to put up the barriers."

To avoid being stuck in auto lines or being turned away at the gate over the Fourth, Nelson advised park-goers to take the several AC Transit bus lines that are extended in to the busiest parks throughout the summer.

There is direct bus service to Tilden and the Roberts pool area of Redwood Regional Parks and Lake Temescal, in the East Bay hills; to Robert Crown Memorial State Beach in Alameda; Lake Chabot Marina, between San Leandro and Castro Valley, and Don Castro Regional Recreation Area, east of Hayward.

On Monday the Fourth, BART also will be operating to make connections with the special park - bound buses, all flying bright orange flags. (For schedules, phone AC Transit information.)

Hours have been extended until 7 p.m. at the Environmental Education Center in the Berkeley hills of Tilden for the entire summer. Though ordinarily closed every Monday, resident naturalist Ron Russo will open the center for all three days.

Besides the working exhibits at the center, the snake and insect talks and the puppet shows, Russo has scheduled nature walks mornings and afternoons.

Farm Day activities at the Little Farm, adjacent to the center, will be going on continuously on Saturday, July 2 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., including shearing the farm's "resident sheep," spinning, building a structure from scrap materials and demonstrations of using an axe, saw and maul.

Also running at full tilt will be the naturalist staff at Coyote Hills Regional Park at the end of Patterson Road towards the Bay from Fremont and Route 17.

The Coyote Hills Nature Center also will be open on Monday the Fourth.

Though nature walks are out for the summer because of the heat, the Old Green Barn at Sunol Regional Wilderness Park, with nature exhibits, will be open throughtout the long weekend. Sunol is reached by way of Route 680, east of Fremont, and then south on Calaveras Road to Geary Road, the entrance.

Holiday - makers taking photos of activities, nature subjects and scenery within EBRPD parks might consider entering the annual Parklands in Pictures competition which continues to September 1.

Health center open house

LIVERMORE — The Livermore Health Care Center will hold an open house July 8 to give the public a chance to see the clinic facilities and meet staff personnel.

Open since June 22, the clinic is a joint effort of the Alameda County Health Care Services Agency's Fairmont Hospital and the Pleasanton Health Care Center.

The open house will be held Friday, July 8 from 3 to 7 p.m.

The Fairmont Hospital outreach team which staffs the center includes a physician, nurses, medical social worker and clerks. There is also a patient services technician to arrange for payment of fees by the patient, insurance carrier or medical assistance source.

"Like a family doctor, the primary care team gets to know each patient as an individual with particular health needs, helping to maintain health, recognizing and treating common disorders, referring patients for any necessary specialized care, and seeing them through to a recovery of normal activity," said Fairmont Ambulatory Care administrator Jack K. Waller.

Emphasis is being placed on primary care for persons living in the Livermore area who have no regular source of health care, according to center director Michael O'Connor.

"The open house will be an opportunity for citizens to view the clinic facilities and meet staff," O'Connor said.

Center services include general medical care for all ages, including physical examinations. Social services are also available.

Additional services planned include blood pressure screening, pregnancy testing, TB skin testing, child health disability prevention, pre-marital blood tests and nutritional counseling.

The center, located at 161 South M St. in Livermore, is open every Wednesday and Friday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. For appointment or information, call 462-1755. English and Spanish are spoken.

Teens working

LIVERMORE — The Summer Jobs for Teens program is in high gear now, with 275 youngsters' applications completed and 100 of them already placed in jobs, according to city officials.

Most of the requests for teen helpers, according to Jack King of the Summer Jobs for Teens Committee, have been made by local residents who need someone to mow the lawn, help with cleaning, do painting, work as a baby sitter, or any of a number of other jobs.

Prospective employers who have jobs around the house they never seem able to find the time to complete have been urged to call the program at 455-HIRE for either part-time or full-time, temporary or permanent help.

Perhaps there is yard work to be done, a pool to be cleaned or an attic full of boxes to be thrown out. And what about a parent's helper when there are small children to be supervised while housework is being done?

Teens who have not yet completed applications for employment are encouraged to come directly to the Employment Development Department office, 1783 Barcelona St. EDD staff will try to place applicants in the neighborhoods where they live.

Other teenagers interested in gaining experience by doing volunteer work for one of the Livermore nonprofit social service agencies should call Phoebe Baxter at the Volunteer Bureau (462-3570).

Amador report cards ready

PLEASANTON — Report cards were issued to Amador Valley High School students Tuesday.

School smoke alarm work this fall?

DANVILLE— If the federal office administering public works grants approves a San Ramon Valley Unified School District application by mid-July, work on installation of modern smoke detector systems at 15 district facilities could begin by mid-September.

The $409,000 grant application written by Dr. James Smith of the district was approved last week by the Contra Costa County Board of Supervisors and will now be forwarded by the district to federal regional offices in Seattle, Washington.

While approval is semi-routine, the date the district will learn of grant action can only be estimated.

The prospective funding does not include similar systems that are being built into Neil Armstrong School and Pine Valley Intermediate School in San Ramon.

Dr. Orrin Batchelor, assistant superintendent for business services, adds that a contract has already been let for smoke detector systems at Walt Disney, Greenbrook and John Baldwin Schools. These projects, which feature the same type of systems being installed at Armstrong and other district facilities, are being covered by district funds.

While the contemporary systems at Armstrong and Pine Valley are expected to be "on line" by the time school opens in September, the Disney, Greenbrook and John Baldwin systems will take approximately five months to install.

The prospective grant-covered projects are a second priority item for the district. A first priority, establishment of an elementary school on the Tibros site, was not funded.

Batchelor said the county had issued federal funds previously to projects in Pittsburg and Concord that were given higher priority.

The Tibros site totals some 35 acres, 10 of which were originally planned for an elementary school and the remainder for an intermediate grades school.

The district is presently attempting to sell the elementary portion of the property.

Batchelor said if approval of the $400,000 grant application is received by mid-July, he will put the item on the Aug. 1 board agenda.

A stipulation of the grant is that work begin within 90 days of approval by the federal regional office.

The grant application is covered by the federal Local Public Works Capital and Investment Program, Public Law 94-369.

Murray teachers, officials near accord on new contract terms

Murray School District teachers and administration have reached tentative agreements on "80 per cent" of all contract items, according to Allan Petersdorf, Jr., Murray Teachers Association president.

With negotiations well along, the two sides have agreed to recess until August, pending availability of new information concerning the funding of schools.

Among the many tentative agreements reached by the teachers and district, according to Petersdorf, are the following:

Calendar— Teachers and district have agreed upon a tentative starting date of Sept. 7. The number of teaching days will be 180, the same as the past school year.

Evaluation procedure, leave policy, grievances pertaining to the contract, teacher work day, class size, assignment and transfer of teachers, part time employees, and early retirement.

Petersdorf said tentative agreement on the work day calls for teachers to be on-site 20 minutes prior to the start of class and in the classroom five minutes before classes are to convene.

Expanding on the class size issue, Petersdorf said class size average will be determined at each school site.

The district has agreed to grant step and column as of July 1, according to Petersdorf.

Chief negotiator George Richmond commented, "We are pleased with the progress and the tone of negotiations. Our sincere hope is that when the funding comes from the state, the contract will reach a successful conclusion."

Petersdorf added, "I am very happy with the way negotiations have been preceeding. Our team has done a fantastic job during the year on writing and working on the contract. Without their dedication, much of what was accomplished would not have occurred."

The MTA negotiating team is composed of Richmond, Paul Vinella, and Gerry Joyce.

Tax appeal

The California State Board of Equalization wants to remind you that July 2 is the first day on which you might appeal the county assessor's judgement as to what your property is worth. The State Board does not advise that such appeal is laden with pitfalls.

The procedure seems simple enough: You don't agree with the "assessed value" affixed to your home or vacant land; you take your case to the County Equalization Board where you are given a hearing; if the county panel rules in your favor, the county assessor must reduce your "fair market value" accordingly.

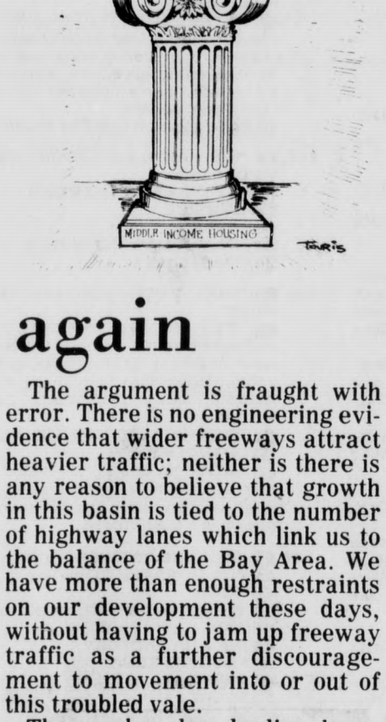
But that same board might also decide the county assessor's first judgement of your property's value was too modest; once the hearing starts, you are just as subject to an increase in your assessed value, as you are a decrease.

And even when the equalization panel moves to reduce your assessed value, there are reports the tax collector "gets that back and more" in the years following your one - time reduction in taxable value.

We don't wish to discourage anyone from filing such an appeal, particularly this year when a single sale in one tract (even if that "sale" is little more than a modest down payment) can baloon the "fair market value" of every other residence in that neighborhood.

But every home owner is urged to weight carefully the values involved. Would you sell your home for less than the county assessor has it appraised? That's the key test the County Equalization Board will put you to.

The tax burden on private property is unfair, even confiscatory. Real relief will only come when the State Legislature decides that a citizen who works hard to maintain a home in California should not be penalized for that contribution to his family, and to the community.



I-580, again

When Assemblyman Floyd Mori leads a group of state highway commissioners and the press along the first phase of Interstate 580 through Dublin Canyon this morning, you can bet there'll be some interested spectating by those who never wanted that freeway in the first place.

As it is, the jury is still out on the question of how much of the expanded freeway can be used . . . the Sierra Club having won some sort of agreement which seems to say: "California Department of Transportation agrees not to use all eight lanes of the freeway unless the need for those extra lanes can be clearly established."

The reasoning appears to be that each freeway lane not used is that much less traffic rolling through that canyon; and less traffic automatically leads to less air pollution, etc. etc.

The argument is fraught with error. There is no engineering evidence that wider freeways attract heavier traffic; neither is there is any reason to believe that growth in this basin is tied to the number of highway lanes which link us to the balance of the Bay Area. We have more than enough restraints on our development these days, without having to jam up freeway traffic as a further discouragement to movement into or out of this troubled vale.

Those who already live here, and who must travel west and north many times each week, will already testify to the added safety afforded even by that partial widening of I - 580 through Dublin Canyon. We hope some of them advise Assemblyman Mori and his guests of the merits of a better, broader highway. There's sure no shortage of comment from the other side.

One man's pay

Attorney General Evelle Younger's "little joke" about being "flat broke" failed to stir any tears from his California constitutents; but it may stir up a hornet's nest of interest in salaries and pensions for a great many bureaucrats.

Since Younger broached the subject of his current income, the press was prompted to do a little research on that one public servant's financial status. It is quite a story.

As a former district attorney for Los Angeles County, Younger collects $530 per month for life from that county. This is in addition to the $42,500 he is paid as Attorney General for the State of California.

Next June, when at age 60 he retires as a major general in the U.S. Air Force Reserve, Mr. Younger will add another $850 per month, for life.

In January of 1979, when he retires from his present state office, Younger will be entitled to a $1,416 monthly pension from the state and in June, 1983, he will get at least $1638 per month additional pension as a retired Superior Court Judge and Municipal Court Judge.

These four pensions — all at taxpayers' expense — will total $53,226, and that's not including cost - of - living adjustments down the line.

Nor have we included the possibility that Evelle Younger will complete his final ambition — to be elected Govenor of California in 1978 — and thereby prolong his state paycheck, and sweeten his pension pot.

The attorney general's "little joke" is really a very big joke on the rest of us who make it possible for thousands of "public servants" to pile up pensions and paychecks to an extent that mocks the system, and the public.

FOCUS/Serrano decision

Equity & quality

In the wake of the Serrano-Priest court decision, the state's public education system must now realign its school finance procedures, which have been devised piecemeal over the years.

The decision handed down by the state Supreme Court said the method by which California finances its public schools is unfair, both to students and taxpayers.

The ruling gives the legislature and the state's educational community until September of 1980 to remedy present inequities in financing.

But, as U.S. Information Officer John Chaffee said earlier this month, "the court has concluded that money is obviously of basic importance in determining the quality of a child's education— even though more money doesn't guarantee better schools."

While this sounds paradoxical, there is at least one example here in the East Bay Area to support Chaffee's comments.

San Leandro and San Lorenzo Unified, two side-by-side districts in southern Alameda County, are typical of the sort of problem state legislators are charged with solving.

Having taught in the San Lorenzo district years ago, we have some idea of what situation that particular district is in.

In the 1975-76 school year, property values provided San Leandro schools roughly $76,000 and $115,000 per elementary and high school student, respectively.

Next door in San Lorenzo, an unincorporated area, property taxes generated only $27,000 and $39,000 per elementary and high school student for the same year.

Continues Chaffee, "Because the state Department of Education has its own budget limitations, it's not yet certain how extensively 'Beyond Serrano' may or may not become available to the general public."

"Beyond Serrano" is the title of a report written by Chaffee, under the editorial supervision of Wilson Riles' staff. Riles is state Superintendent for Public Instruction. The report was the focus of a series run in The Times two weeks ago.

Chaffee remarks in the report that in order to keep the issue in proper perspective, it should be noted the legal issue is equity, not quality....impartiality in providing educational opportunities does not necessarily mean quality education for all, he adds.

"From an educational perspective," he adds, "the issue is both equity and quality."

California's biggest business involves more children than there are people in 34 states. And nearly one-fourth of California's total population is engaged full-time in public schooling — as students, teachers, support staff or administrators.

But while California residents have the 11th highest per capita income, spend more (per person, annually) on public welfare than any other state and rank behind only three states in the amount spent for police protection, California ranks 18th in per capita expenditures on public schooling.

The state legislature must give full weight to these somewhat nebulous statistics as it works to comply with the Serrano decision and meet the September 1980 deadline.

Earth shaking

Editor, The Times:

Earthquakes are areas of the earth shifting and re-settling. If well water is being pumped up and out by millions of gallons a day, what happens to the gaps that are created when the water is no longer present in the ground?

The ground must shift and again settle to fill these empty spaces. Since scientists say that California is overdue for another gigantic earthquake it would appear that the next large scale quake is not too far distant as the water is used up to keep the grass green and for present day life styles to continue.

Pat Enarson
Livermore

Judge is challenged

An open letter to Judge Lewis,
Livermore Municipal Court:

I have just been advised of the outcome of a matter before your court and I am extremely upset by your not guilty verdict.

This matter was a trial on a traffic ticket for running a red light, which resulted in an accident and injuries. I was a witness to this accident and feel very strongly about it, as I was almost struck by the automobile which ran the red light, and the fact that I am expecting my first child only serves to heighten my disgust at this blatant disregard of the facts.

The only hearing held in this matter, which was held over a month prior to your reaching your verdict, was the District Attorney presenting his side of the case. The matter was then continued in order for the defendant to appear with her witnesses who were ill. The District Attorney's witnesses were not asked to return. I now understand that there has never been a second hearing. After two continuances for alleged illness on the part of defendant's witnesses (none of whom appeared on the police report or at the scene of the accident), it is my understanding that you reached your verdict after talking privately to the attorney for the defendant — not in a court hearing.

I am interested in knowing where the District Attorney was at the time you reached your verdict, and why the witnesses for the District Attorney were not recalled when it was obvious that you could not recall the case after such a lapse of time, and only had the defendant's attorney to enlighten you.

It seems incredible to me that you could reach this verdict, based on the statements of one attorney who was not at the scene of the accident, as against three eye-witnesses and a police officer, all of whom gave sworn testimony. To my knowledge the defendant herself never testified under oath, and never presented any witnesses on her behalf.

As upset as I am, a non-victim, I can imagine how the woman who was injured must feel by your verdict. Someone was in the wrong, and by your verdict, you are now saying that it was the injured party who ran the red light. As an innocent victim, who was injured, what does she do now?

If, as the defendant tried to allege, you based your verdict on improper functioning of the traffic signals, then there must have been numerous traffic accidents at that particular intersection that day, that week ... still? To my knowledge there have not been, and it seems strange to me that traffic signals should malfunction on one isolated occasion, especially when three eye-witnesses testified that they were functioning properly. If this is what you based your verdict on, is the City of Livermore ready to take the blame? I think not.

I realize that you can do nothing at this point to change your verdict, however, I am writing this in the hope that continuances in matters of this type not be allowed in the future, or that all witnesses be recalled if a matter is continued. I am also hoping that you will consider your cases more carefully in the future.

After having experienced it first-hand, I now understand why people lose faith in the judicial system. I also understand why people don't want to "get involved", and I will always have second thoughts before I ever do my "civic duty" again.

round the town

You are aware of course of the police chief of that nearby mini - metropolis who arrested several frisbee throwers in a city park, charged them with "exposing members of the public to bodily harm."

The chief concluded that frisbee - throwing is a game fraught with danger, if not for the thrower, or the throwee, then at least for anyone caught betwixt the two.

A great number of today's recreational pursuits seem to present considerable danger to participants, and to innocent bystanders.

You will recall that recent report of a well - known physician who busted up some of his parts whilst soaring ... flying a kite, with himself on board. It is not the kind of weekend sport you might expect from your family doctor, but then again, there is a great deal about today's recreational activity which one might label "unexpected."

Skateboarding, for instance. A harmless little game for little people, right? Wrong. At least in West Germany, where the government of that liberated land has been moved to adopt special legislation governing the sport of "Rollbretting."

The rollbretter is the West German equivalent of the skateboard. They imported the American fad, but not the title. By any name, it is damned dangerous.

"Rolling boards are not playthings that one simply buys and carelessly tries out," said a special West German commission assigned to investigate that pursuit. The panel urged caution, laid down some rules to guide all rollbretters.

Crash helmets, heavy gloves, special padding for elbows, knees and ankles. These are among the required items of apparel for all rollbretters.

The Surgeon General of the United States wanted to require all skateboard manufacturers in this country to affix a label to each board sold: "CAUTION! — skateboarding may be hazardous to your health." But what with cigarettes and cyclamates, the government printing office hasn't got enough labels to go around.

But something has to be done. We simply can't have healthy young Americans destroying their bodies by falling out of kites, or taking nasty tumbles off of rollbretter boards. At this rate, who'll be around to fight our next war?

There was similar concern when my generation was exposed to hazardous recreational pursuits. Only the standards were different.

"You keep playing that game of Kick The Can and I'll kick you clear into the next township," my father would advise us. It was not so much our bodily safety that concerned poppa, as it was damage resulting to our shoes. Kicking cans was not condusive to long - life for footwear.

So too with climbing the crabapple tree, down the street at the Fletcher house.

"You rip one more pair of trousers climbing that tree and I'll rip your hide," father would advise. He loved us, truly; but he loved not our careless, trouser - ripping ways. It was, on that score, a hazardous time of life.

We didn't have skateboards. We did have bob skates. Harmless little things. Two sets of runners, strapped onto the shoe. Allowed beginners to take to the ice with a minimum chance of falling down, rendering damage to self and apparel.

Good theory, bad practice. Bob skates were hell, truth be known. Put a frustrated five - year - old prairie kid on double runners and he's pretty soon making like Bobby Hull, or maybe Maurice "The Rocket" Richard. Tearing up the ice, and tearing up anything, or anyone, who dared get in the way.

The Moose Jaw Safety Council once contemplated adooting special rules to govern the sale and use of skates, of all kinds. Too much mayhem on the Market Street Rinks.

"Are you crazy?!" the Moose Jaw populace demanded. "Skating is not for sissies. Let the participant, and the fan, beware."

I suspect that is going to be the response of the good burghers of West Germany. A rugged bunch. Crashing throught the Maginot Line, and all that. They are not likely to coddle this new generation of rollbretters.

"Why don't you play hide - and - seek with the other children?" That was Mother's idea of a lively summer evening for the little folk. Terrible game. Once I stood against the tree, eyes dutifully covered, counting to one thousand while my older playmates hid out. Time I got through counting the gang had all high-tailed it to more exciting stuff. Climbing the Fletcher's crabapple tree, I'll betcha. Left me in the lurch.

I blamed my Mother for that. Trying to protect her adventuresome babe. Same thing goes for rollbretters in West Germany or kite - flying physicians in California. You simply can't legislate against youthful exuberance.

Tax shift

Although it won't be decided until later this year, the most significant proposal for lasting property tax reform is contained in SB 382 by Senator Alfred Alquist which would shift indigent aid from local government to the state.

Backed by the county supervisors and an impressive array of volunteer local organizations, the ones who now provide relief to the impoverished, ineligible for welfare and Medi-Cal, it has cleared the Senate without opposition and awaits action by an Assembly committee.

The estimated price tag of $90 million for transferring the burden from local (county) government to the broader based state budget is trifling compared to the total state expenditures which will exceed $16 billion.

What is important is that, for the first time, a major cause of the present disproportionate burden of government which has been put upon the property owners is attacked directly.

That is the removal from dependency upon the tax of a program which is not related to the ownership of property. Total reform and the ultimate solution to the undue burdens on property owners will come only when all non-related programs are shifted to broader based financing. Under that concept only such things as police and fire protection, water and sewer services, streets and lighting, and similar services which are required by the fact of property would remain to be supported by the property tax.

Alquist's measure has the added merits of relieving local government of a program more properly the responsibility of the state, providing equal treatment for the most helpless of the needy, and insuring that property tax relief will indeed result.

He achieves the latter by mandating that county governments will reduce the property tax rate in direct proportion to the general assistance (indigent aid) costs that are eliminated. It is a quid pro quo to the counties for the benefit of the property owners.

What Alquist says, in effect, is that when the state picks up the tab for a program currently borne by local government, that aid must reflect in a reduction of local expenditures.

In the previous assaults on the growing oppressiveness of the property tax, state subsidies have been parcelled out to local government with no requirements of proportionate reductions of the tax. As has been seen, the resulting surpluses acruing to local government have been frittered away in new or expanded programs which, instead of diminishing, have only served to increase the need for property taxes.

Tracing the pattern of local government budgets for the past forty years, from the time federal and state assistance was practically non-existent, will dramatically graph the prodigality of the locals in direct ratio to the munificence of the subsidies.

Whether the aid comes in the form of assumptions by the state of local government burdens or in increased subsidies, nothing is gained in correcting the misuse of the property tax unless the lid is clamped down to the exact degree represented by that outside largesse.

Alquist, with his indigent aid measure, has shown the way for effective tax reform while at the same time guaranteeing the needy realistic aid on an equal basis statewide.

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: You may not think this is a problem but I think it is and I can't see a happy solution. My husband is a success in business but he's not his own man anymore and I feel he's more married to his corporation than he is to me. I've never been a joiner. I don't especially like the men in the company nor their wives. I find socializing with them a pain in the neck and a bore. I love my husband even though I get disgusted with him. It seems to me we do nothing but move from house to house, town to town in what are supposed to be upward moves. To me, they're usually downward. — Y.P.

DEAR Y.P.: This is a tough problem and there certainly isn't an easy solution. It calls for compromise. If you want to save your marrige, and I gather from your letter that you do, it's important that you and your husband take time out for long, honest conversations. Both of you need to express all your views and compare your life goals. One person can't do all the giving because that will ultimately lead to resentment which will destroy happiness for both of you.

There will be times when he'll have to give up a move even if it irritates the boss or means less money and security. There will be times, too, when you'll have to force yourself to socialize even if you are bored to death. Most people aren't boring. I believe your feelings indicate your attitudes, anger and the resentment you've already built up, rather than the reality of the situation. Try to analyze what you dislike about his associates, why they are as they are; try to think of their families. Try to think of them as they probably were as children. Try anything, rather than merely sitting in judgment against them.

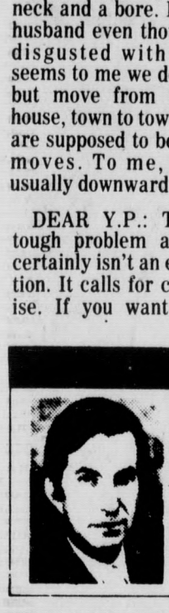
DEAR DR. BROTHERS: Can a woman with a keen sense of humor be happily married to a guy who is so serious he almost never laughs. As you might have guessed, I'm the gal and I'm planning to marry this kind of fellow. I love him, but I get scared every once in a while and wonder if I'm doing the right thing or if I'm doing it just to please my family or keep up with my friends. I don't think I am, but what about his lack of humor? Sometimes it bugs me. — H.W.

DEAR H.W.: First of all, you're wise to consider the possibility that you might just be heading for a wedding for the wrong reasons. Weigh this carefully, and if you are, be smart enough and mature enough to call it off before it's too late.

A sense of humor is very important, but a "serious" man, even one who rarely laughs, can have a sense of humor, so don't rule it out. It may be a different kind of humor, but worth exploring. He may be more introverted and if you're an extrovert, this is all to the good. The old saying that opposites attract has proved to be quite true, at least in terms of personality types.

A good sense of humor is important for many reasons, one being that it helps us cope with our problems. It also relieves tension and hostility. Couples who can laugh together are much more apt to solve their problems without too much wear and tear on themselves or each other.

If you have doubts, wait. Marriage is no laughing matter if the couple's incompatible.



Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a physical problem that I find very annoying and sometimes painful. I wake up to find one or both of my hands numb. Sometimes the sensation extends up my arm. This tingling sensation, leading to numbness occasionally occurs for no apparent reason. I can be watching TV, driving a car, writing, etc. and my thumb and index finger tingle and then may become numb.

This is an ongoing condition. So far my doctor has dismissed it as "nothing" followed, after months, by an X ray of my neck. He thought there might be arthritis of the neck. This does not seem to be the case either and the tingling goes on for a second year.

In discussing this with a lay person the symptoms reminded her of a condition called "carpal tunnel." I know the carpus involves the wrist bones but I would appreciate more information about the symptoms and treatment.

DEAR READER — That lay person is pretty smart. The carpal tunnel refers to an area at the front of the wrist. All of the tendons (eight to be exact) to bend the fingers pass under a sheath of tough fiberous tissue that encircles the wrist like a watch band. The space or tunnel underneath this band is quite small and bounded at the back by the bones. The median nerve, a main nerve to the hand, also passes through this tunnel.

When the space is too small, for a variety of reasons the median nerve is compressed. This nerve supplies the thumb, the index and middle finger area. Compression of the nerve causes pain and tingling, particularly at night and involving particularly the thumb, index and middle finger. It can cause pain in the forearm as you describe. In long standing cases of severe compression the muscular area at the base of the thumb may atrophy. Use of the hands, during the day, may make the symptoms worse.

In its early stages it is hard to diagnose. And your doctor was correct in looking for a cause in your neck. An obstruction or compression anywhere from the neck to the hand of arteries or nerves can cause similar symptoms.

Before any muscular changes in the hand occur about all the doctor can find is a change in response to pinprick sensation over the thumb and involved fingers.

astrograph

July 1, 1977

The romantic bonds between you and the one you love will be drawn tighter this coming year. If there's no one in the picture, don't fret. Cupid will not overlook you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In order to pacify companions, be willing to grant whatever small concessions are necessary. A warm friend is far better than a cold shoulder. Find out to whom you're romanitcally suited by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's important to focus on the rewards for your efforts today rather than the strife along the way. That way a tough task becomes easier.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If entertainment plans for this evening are inexpensive, you'll have fun. If they cost you an arm and a leg, you'll get only a headache.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Get your interests out of the picture and devote your efforts to helping those you love. This is where it's at for you today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't conjure up preconceived negative thoughts regarding a situation you're involved in today. Chances are it won't work out that way at all.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your first inclination today is to replace something rather than have it repaired. Shop around with the latter in mind. You could save money.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In social situations today do your utmost to avoid discussing your career or business. Join the crowd and have a ball.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Persons you thought to be essential to your cause today may be the first to let you down. However, help from another quarter will prove even better.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A fascinating member of the opposite sex may try to draw you into some clandestine intrigue today. This person has nothing to lose, but you do.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You may have to tramp on someone's toes in order to achieve your goals today. If it's necessary, at least try to tread softly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Even though a coworker deserves your criticism today, suppress it. Try to find something nice to say, or else hold your tongue.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In situations where you hope to gain today, you may have to prime the pump a bit. What comes out will far exceed what you put in.

Opening lead — Q ♦

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Jose Le Dentu, one of the best players in France, is the hero of today's hand. Not that he might not have been the goat. His takeout double of South's one-heart opening caught his partner with plenty of nothing. So East passed to let Le Dentu get out of his own trouble. His one-spade bid didn't get him out, but South came through with some needed help and decided to try three notrump.

One spade would probably have gone down 800, but three notrump would have made against any defense except that Le Dentu came up with — one of those one in a million leads.

He put the queen of diamonds on the table. You can't blame South for winning with the king and leading a heart toward dummy. Le Dentu took his king and leed a second diamond. Dummy's 10 lost to East's jack. East led his jack of spades and there was no way to keep the defense from collecting two spades, one diamond, one heart, one club and 100 points.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "WHERE DOES TEA COME FROM?"

Tea is a drink made from the cured leaves of an evergreen tree. Most of the world's tea is grown on tea plantations in such faraway places as China, Sri Lanka and Japan. Though tea trees can grow to about 30 feet tall, to get many small, tender leaves, the tree is trimmed so that it grows as a bush 3 or 4 feet high.

The bushes grow in rows. Pickers walk along the rows with their baskets, picking only the tenderest leaves and buds from each branch. Since new leaves are always coming out, the picking goes on all during the growing season.

The leaves are spread out in trays to wilt a day or two. The moisture evaporates and the leaves become soft and pliable.

Then the leaves are crushed between rollers to free an oil which gives tea its pleasant flavor.

Finally, the leaves are dried in hot ovens. Tea is made into a drink by brewing the leaves in boiling water — usually in a teapot.

Alameda wins again

HAYWARD — Falling prey to missed shots and opportunities late in the game the Contra Costa County All-Star cagers bowed to Alameda 92-86 at the Cal-State Hayward gym here last night in the second of two All-Star Classic basketball games.

Alameda led by 14 early in the second half before Contra Costa began chipping away at that mark.

The Contra Costa comeback was led by Rick McHone and Joe Doherty. Doherty ended the contest with 16 points for the vistors who were led by Bart Bowers who tallied 18 markers.

Ken Carter added 16 for Contra Costa.

Alameda's attack featured balanced scoring with Donald Seals tossing in 17 points former Fremont teammates Phil Barner and Greg Howard scoring 15 and 16 points, respectively. Also in double figures for Alameda was Mike Mendez who finished with 10 points.

Alameda's winning scoring spurt was started by a field goal by Mendez and two free throws by Seals. Seals, and Kevin Flaig later iced the victory by scoring field goals in a 21 second space.

Besides his 15 points Barner had 12 rebounds to lead Alameda, while Doherty and Tony Thomas each pulled down 11 caroms for Contra Costa.

In the early going it was all Alameda as the winners of the first game of the series jumped off to a 33-13 advantage midway through the first half.

At that point Contra Costa's Ken Carter, a 5-7, 150 pound guard, tossed in three quick hoops and two free throws sandwiched around a bucket by Rick McHone which cut the Alameda lead to 33-25 with just over five minutes to play.

After a missed breakaway layup by Mike Mendez of Alameda Contra Costa hit two more hoops to close within four points.

The two Alameda super stars of game one, Phil Barner and Donald Seals, answered the Contra Costa rally with one bucket each and the home team's lead was back to eight points.

After Jim Murphy hit one of two free throws for Contra Costa, Greg Howard of Fremont poured in three baskets and Alameda went to intermission with a 10-point advantage.

Alameda's first half lead came by way of 10 points for Howard, nine for Seals, eight for Barner and five for Joey Wujek of Granada.

Contra Costa was led by Carter with 12 markers and 6-7 Joe Doherty who canned six points in the first half.

Attendance was around 1,200 in the benefit game for United Cerebral Palsy.

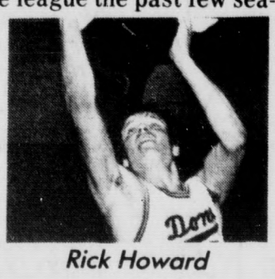
A bright new day for cagers

On Sports

While the baseball diamonds of the valley are buzzing with activity during the hot summer months there's also quite a bit of action going on at Amador Valley High School's gym three nights a week.

The Don gym is the site of the Pleasanton Recreation Allied Brokers Summer Basketball League. Composed of teams from high schools in the valley and the Hayward-Fremont area it provides prep players a chance to sharpen their cage skills in the off season.

Pleasanton, made up of players from Amador Valley, has dominated the league the past few seasons.



Rick Howard

Members of last years' Dons' East Bay Athletic League champions are on Pleasanton's team. Some of the key stars off the AV title squad like Rick Howard and Chris Kearns are currently starring in the summer loop.

Many of the other top players in the EBAL last season are competing in the summer loop this year.

Chuck Cary of California is playing for San Ramon. (the name of the community rather than the school is what the teams plays under) John Farfan of Livermore, Jeff Barnes and Dan Pearson of Dublin and Rick Rosenbach of Foothill are other top players in the summer league.

Summer league basketball is catching on all over the place, particularly in big cities. Oakland has one of the best summer league programs on the West Coast. That's probably one reason the Oakland Athletic League is regarded as the toughest prep basketball league in Northern California.

Basketball is a year-around sport in Oakland. The sport surpasses even football in popularity.

But the sport is catching on in the valley too. And while, even the more ardent local booster would have a hard time comparing EBAL basketball to the OAL, there's no doubt the summer league program at Amador Valley is a big assist for valley cagers.

However, a few coaches might disagree with the setup of the summer league program.

"I don't agree with the summer league program completely," said one coach recently. "It's getting to be a sort of heavy-pressure setup where the stress is on winning.

"I'd rather see an intermural program at the different schools rather than this type of program," he went on. "I think it would be nice to have a program during the summer where the kids can come and go without the heavy pressure of a varsity-type program."

However, this coach also sees some postive aspects to the Brokers' summer program.

"It gives you a chance to play a lot of kids and find out who can play and who can't," he remarked. "The more you practice the better you get. I like to play all the kids. This way the kids are happy and I can see how they gradually develop."

This coach may have a point in feeling that the summer league program places too much pressure on the kids.

However, as he also admitted, it gives the players a chance to develop their skills in preparation for the winter season.

One coach of an Hayward-area team which will play several of the Oakland schools next winter constantly stressed the necessity of aggressive rebounding in a game early this week.

That is one of the main reasons for summer cage leagues. To get teams ready for the varsity seasons.

Ten or 12 years ago high schools in the East Bay Area did not have summer league basketball. The sport was generally regarded as a activity to keep the athletes busy between football and the spring sports seasons.

With the increased popularity of the National Basketball Association, however, and the cage dysnasty at UCLA under John Wooden, summer basketball leagues began to appear.

Now there are several in the Bay Area and popularity in the sport is at an all-time high, despite the fact there are now a lot more athletic activities or kids to get involved in.

Kevin Moyer and Floyd Cuthbertson each had two hits for the A's.

Dave Gaudette and Mark Glick each played well on defense for the losers.

Doug Ryan hurled a one-hitter in the first game between the two teams as the Orioles took a 17-8 decision.

Bob Zeplitz and Shaw each had two hits for the winners. Shaw added two RBI's. Perry had a double and three RBI's and Greg Persky a double and two RBI's.

Reds rout Giants, 11-5

CINCINNATI — Dan Driessen drove in four runs and Joe Morgan scored five times as the Cincinnati Reds defeated the San Francisco Giants 11-5 Thursday.

The hot-hitting Driessen, who has driven in 12 runs in his last 10 games, raised his average to .309 with three singles and a walk. Morgan walked three times and also reached base on a fielder's choice and an error to move into second place in the National League with 62 runs scored.

Woodie Fryman, 4-5, who limited the Giants to two runs on two hits in six innings, was the winner. Dale Murray picked up his second save of the season with 11-3 innings of shutout relief. San Francisco starter Ed Halicki, 7-7, took the loss.

Chris shows feelings

WIMBLEDON, England — There she was on the center court of Wimbledon, exposed to the world.

Chris Evert is human, after all. Chris Evert can cry.

Cut a vein and real blood seeps out. Not ice water. Look beneath those lean arms swinging the racket with such relentless precision, and what do you find? Not fibers of steel, as we've come to suspect, but ordinary sinews that can be fragile and refuse to respond to a person's will.

Lay open the pretty head that lies beneath that bouncing, shoulder-length blonde hair. Is that a computer in there with intricate wires, transistors and flashing lights? No, sir, it's a human brain just like yours and mine.

Search the soul and you discover no machine device immune to pressure, frustration and dismay.

It has taken years to prove it, but Chris Evert, little Miss Icicle, has shown that she, like all God's creatures, is subject to heartache and pain.

The eyes of the 22 - year - old reigning monarch of ladies' tennis were red and damp when she greeted the press after an unbelievable 6-2, 4-6, 6-1 loss to Britain's Virginia Wade Wednesday in Wimbledon's semifinals.

"I could not reach deep inside of myself and pull out what I needed to win the match," she explained.

It wasn't vintage Evert that bowed to Miss Wade. This was not the coldly methodical automaton that burst upon the open scene at age 18 in 1972 and proceeded to take over full dominance of the sport, winning Wimbledon in 1974 and 1976 and the U.S. Open at Forest Hills in 1975 and 1976.

She committed a total of 25 unforced errors, mostly on her forehand. She served six double faults. She was obviously nervous and her usual confidence fell in ragged tatters.

"I just played a bad match," she acknowledged unflinchingly. "I couldn't get psyched up. I think Virginia wanted to win worse than I did."

Chrissy looked as if she wanted to burst into tears any moment, so the press mercifully excused her.

It was the first time in her entire career — both on and off the court — that anyone had seen her composure waver.

Winter Sleet takes a bath

There is an old adage around the race track — don't bet a sweating horse in the summertime.

With the solstice just two weeks gone, enough form players stuck to there figures to send Vicgray Farms' Winter Sleet off the favorite in yesterday's $8500 Distaff Purse at the Alameda County Fairgrounds.

Sleet went to the post washy, foam frosting his lean Flanks, and the system players took a bath as Bill Mahorney moved briefly halfway through the six furlong feature but couldn't take the lead and Winter Sleet wound up fourth behind Lexi Jane.

Lexi Jane, a three-year P.J. Guidotti-trained filly was ridden by Arthur Sherman and paid $8.40 to win. She took the lead in the stretch and beat Soft Focus, one-half of a C.B. Hixon-trained entry by one and one-half lengths.

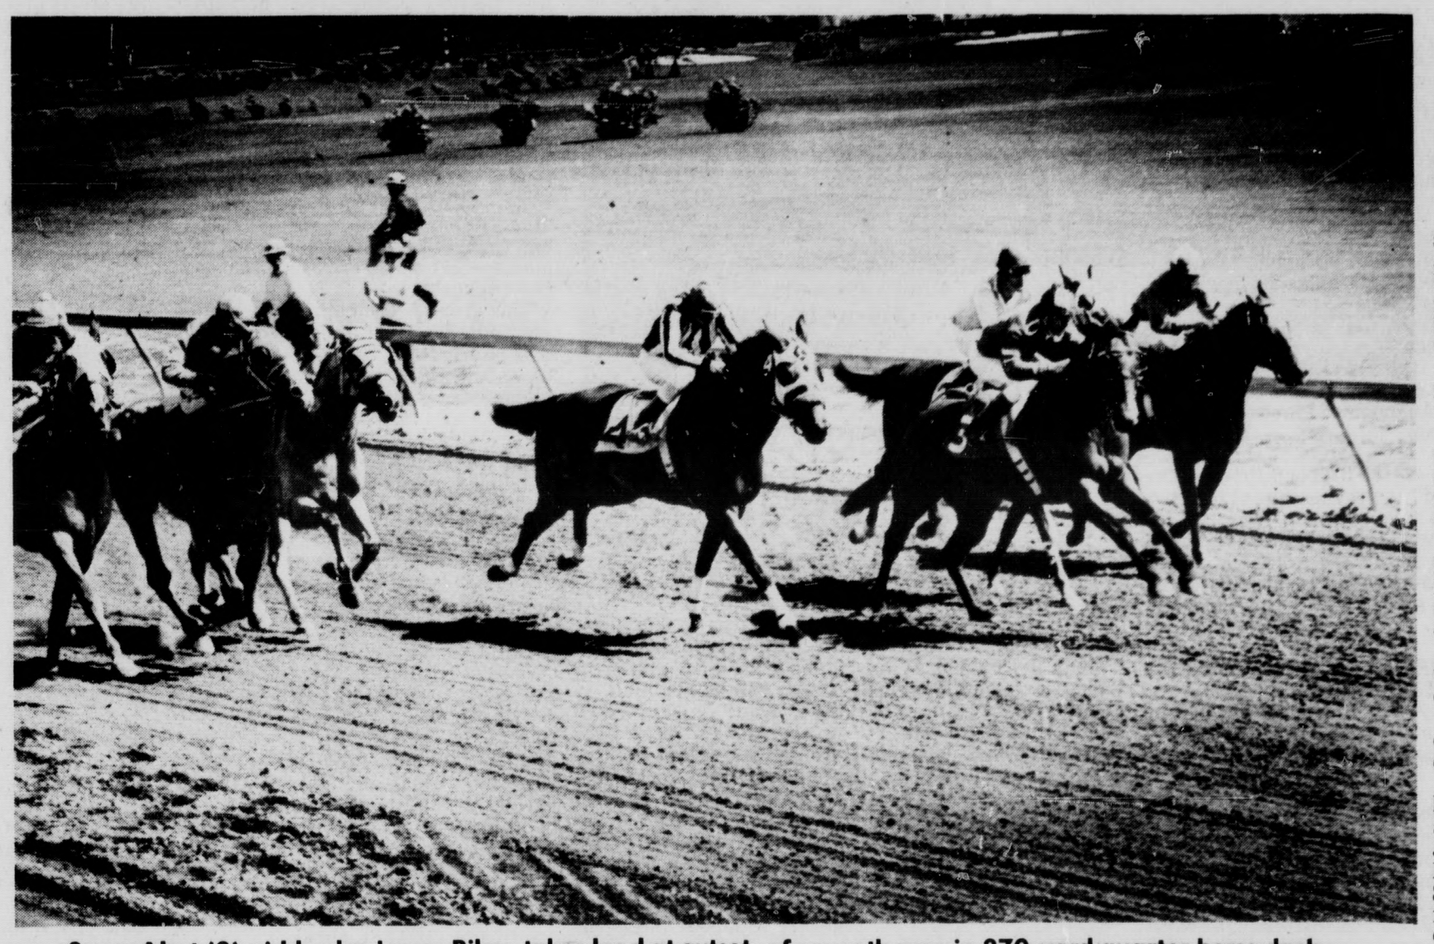
The second - largest crowd of the now one-third completed meeting, 7789 was on hand and contributed $854,766 to the day's mutuel handle.

Today's feature, the Alamedan Prep, is both the longest and most rewarding rae offered in the spotlight this week. Nine three-year olds and older horses will go one and one-sixteenth miles in quest of shares of the $10,000 purse.

Vicgray Farms will again send the favorite, this time Narrow Way, with Mahorney up again, into the gate. Narrow Way won the Vallejo Day Handicap at the Solano County Fair but must tote high-weight of 121 pounds today.

Thunder Papa, with John Ishihara aboard and Hollywood import Bacamys, with Ross Allardyce in the saddle, could be Narrow Way's closest rival.

Others in the field include Lark's Success, Persiball, Phelo Zaca, Grantum Glory, Royal Physician and Trust Up.



Super Alert (3), ridden by James Riley, takes lead at outset of seventh race in 870-yard quarter horse dash.

Bob Peterson had three hits and Rich Mueller and Carl Dice each had two hits for Columbus Realty. Dice added three RBI's.

A six-run rally in the third inning proved to be decisive for the winners.

Jack-In-The-Box romped over the Elks 11-1 in another contest.

Greg Bruce had three hits for the winners. He also had three RBI's. Terry Jacob, Dave Gutierrez, Fred Slayton and Marty Sauceda each had two hits for the victors. Greg Sundahl had two hits and Mike Weese one for the Elks.

Scott Cammon was the winning pitcher and Sundahl took the loss.

Common had 15 strikeouts and walked just three batters.

Serv-Pro belted LLLRA 12-6 despite being outhit 9-5.

Tom Astengo had three hits and three RBI's. Ken Lema and Bryan King each had one hit for the winners. Lema belted a double.

EBAL 8-school format saved

The Paradise League has been saved.

The Paradise League — which is the North Coast Section jargon for the East Bay Athletic League — was in danger of being dismembered in favor of a massive restructuring of athletic leagues throughout Northern California, but Tuesday afternoon in Concord the NCS Board of Managers voted 13-12 to retain the present alignment of leagues.

The proposal, which was voted down, would have mandated that all league contain six schools, rather than the eight that is more common. Proponents cited economy and less strain on coaches and athletes while the eventual winners emphasized the values of tradition and the certainty of competition.

The EBAL was in the forefront of the battle against the six-school league proposal, and one of the main reasons was the idyllic situation within the league. The eight schools are closely aligned geographically and economically and the competition has been even in most sports. The two newer schools — Foothill and California — have had their problems but no more so than new schools anywhere.

If the proposal had passed, two of the present members of the EBAL would have been forcibly removed — kicking and screaming — and aligned with four other schools in the East Bay.

The shorter schedule that would have resulted from the six-team leagues was one of the main attractions, as money would have been saved for referees, transportation, etc. Also with shorter schedules the amount of overlap from sport to sport would have been lessened, thus easing pressure on coaches and athletes.

However, traditionalists who decried the loss of rivalries and the threat to minor sports won out.

For example, it was quite possible that two of the high schools in the San Ramon Valley Unified School would have been in a different league than the third, eliminating the possibility of a strong rivalry building up.

Also, if one team in an eight-team league decided not to play water polo, say, a strong league would still exist. But in a six-team league, if one school dropped out of the league would be weak and if two schools opted not to participate the sport would probably be eliminated on a league level.

The closeness of the vote exhibited the controversial nature of the issue, and it's quite likely that it will be brought before the NCS Board of Managers again in the next couple of years. But for noe, at least, the paradise League is still intact.

One other major decision made at the meeting was to eliminate frosh-soph competition at NCS meets in track, swimming, and cross country. Four reasons led to the move: (1) The length of meets were becoming prohibitive and would become even longer if girls' frosh-soph competition was added; (2) The expense of sending just one or two frosh-soph athletes was not felt to be worth it; (3) Outstanding athletes who were lower-classmen were dropping down to frosh-soph after competing at the varsity level all year, and (4) It was felt that a Section championship is cheapened if an athlete goes four years in a row, whereas it will be much more prized if it happens just once or twice a career.

The Mass was concelebrated with Bishop Cummins by 270 priests and 30 bishops. There were also representatives of the 85 parishes in the diocese on stage.

The installation of Bishop Cummins marks a rarity on the West Coast ... a bishop returns to his home community to serve in his own diocese.

Bishop Cummins was born in Oakland, grew up on Woolsey Street in Berkeley and attended St. Patrick's College and Seminary in Menlo Park.

Ordained on January 24, 1953, the young priest served as associate pastor at Mission Dolores until 1957 when he came to Oakland to teach at Bishop O'Dowd High School. He did graduate work in history at Catholic University, Washington, D.C., and at the University of California at Berkeley.

He became Chancellor of the Oakland Diocese at its inception in 1962, and attended the second Vatican Council as secretary to Bishop Begin.

As chairman of the Ecumenical Committee of the diocese, he was a member of the American Baptist - Roman Catholic diologue sponsored by the National Conference of Catholic Bishops and was active in coordinating a national meeting of ecumenical leaders in Oakland.

He worked closely with Catholic and Protestant theologians in the early days of the Graduate Theological Union in Berkeley, and as Chancellor, was director to the Social Justice Commission, involving him in the fair housing initiative, the farm workers' plight and fair employment practices.

He went to Sacramento in 1971, first to represent the diocese of the state in legistlative matters, and then as Auxiliary Bishop of that diocese.

On May 3 of this year the Vatican announced the appointment of Bishop Cummins as the bishop of the diocese of Oakland, which comprises Alameda and Contra Costa Counties.

4-wheel festival

Off-roaders invade Livermore

Livermore — Highway 84, a usually peaceful country road near here, was congested with bumper to bumper traffic recently when 125 Dodge and Plymouth four-wheel drive vehicles made their way to Carnegie Cycle Park as part of a unique Chrysler Corporation truck promotion for dealers and salesmen.

Conducted by the corporation's San Francisco sales zone, the program combined business with pleasure and used the cycle park as an outdoor classroom to demonstrate off-road driving techniques to the dealership personnel.

The promotion was called a "driveaway" because the dealers picked up their pre-purchased new units en masses and drove them back to the dealerships to be sold. But before returning to the showrooms, there were lessons in off-roading to be learned at the cycle park.

Carnegie, a popular Northern California recreational facility, includes 1,600 acres of rolling hills and valleys for various forms of motorcycle riding.

Don Harding, San Francisco zone truck manager and coordinator of the event, said 63 zone Dodge and Chrysler-plymouth dealers participated in the event, purchasing the 125 new units at a cost of approximately $1 million.

"This was a very successful promotion for both the corporation and the dealers," Harding said.

The event, attended by more than 200 dealership and corporation personnel, began with a morning sales rally on the patio of Lane Publishing Co. in Menlo Park. Lane publishes Sunset, a popular Western magazine featuring articles on gardening, cooking, home improvement and travel.

Al Imber, Chrysler's national manager of truck sales, told the rally audience that the San Francisco zone is one of the nation's biggest truck markets, complimented the dealers on their sales efforts and wished them continued success.

"The truck market is exceeding all expectations, and we're confident that sales will continue into the next decade at a much faster rate than for cars," Imber said.

He told his audience that trucks are rapidly gaining popularity as personal transportation vehicles and that the changing nature of the truck market "makes this an exciting time to be in the automobile business."

Following the sales meeting, the dealers rounded up their new vehicles in the Lane parking lot and drove in convoy fashion to the cycle park for lunch and a series of four-wheel drive demonstrations.

"Unlike most driveaways, we designed this event to be a true learning experience for dealers and their salesmen," Harding said.

After driving to a hilltop vantage point, the group watched a team of professional off-road drivers negotiate a challenging course of hills, banks, ruts and gullies.

"Rather than just having the dealership personnel pick up their units and drive back to the store, we wanted them to see the capabilities of full-time four-wheel drive first hand so they can better relate to their customers," Harding added.

Following a Brazilian barbecue lunch, prepared by Sunset magazine, the participants returned to their dealerships with the new units and greater knowledge of four-wheel drive to help in the sale.

Rush hour

Dealers test drive new Dodge and Plymouth four-wheel drive vehicles at Carnegie Cycle Park near Livermore during a special Chrysler Corporation truck sales promotion program. Chrysler used the cycle park to demonstrate off-road driving techniques to dealers and salesmen. As a result of the promotion 63 dealers purchased 125 new vehicles at a cost of approximately $1 million.

Something missing?

The controls on this Volkswagen Dasher have been designed to allow an armless person to drive. Developed by West German orthopedic specialist Dr. Ernst Marquardt of the University of Heidelberg, the system utilizes foot pedals to stop, start and steer the vehicle. A Veterans Administration official in New York City, Anthony Staros, said the system, which is presently under study here, represents a "major breakthrough in the search for an efficient and economical means of independent mobility for amelia patients."

Sales climb for area dealers

Chevrolet dealers in the Oakland zone area reported strong sales gains during May as dealers delivered 10,636 passenger cars and trucks.

The total included 6,101 passenger cars and 4,535 trucks. This compares with 3,436 cars and 2,560 trucks in April and 3,624 cars and 3,183 trucks in May, 1976.

The Oakland zone sales levels helped Chevrolet nationally post its 12th consecutive record truck sales month. May new truck sales nationally totaled 104,305, up 15.7 percent from a year ago while passenger car sales were 203,397, up nearly 11 percent from May, 1976.

"The current economic signals in the zone area support an optimistic outlook for the months ahead," Luke Barrett, Jr., Chevrolet zone manager here, said. "The current upswing in demand for both new passenger cars and trucks is particularly strong as we move into the summer season with dealers reporting shortages in some fast selling lines."

The Oakland zone includes 143 Chevrolet dealers in Northern California and Western Nevada.

Cars push for diesel power

The diesel engine, which is generally thought of in connection with large tractor-trailer trucks, is fast becoming one of the more wanted automobile engines of the 1970s.

The problems inventor Rudolf Diesel first encountered 85 years ago with his engine, which works by compression heat process, have been solved. Thousands of drivers are opting for highly reliable, safe diesel engine and both American and foreign manufacturers expect good sales figures for cars equipped with Mr. Diesel's invention.

The type of engine in a car, gas or diesel, does not affect insurance rates. But buying a diesel car will change your driving habits, said Jack Martens, Allstate's automotive engineering director.

"The big plus for the diesel engine is its good fuel economy — about 25 to 50 percent better than a gasoline-powered car," said Martens. "A drawback is locating a service station. There are more than 8,500 diesel stations along interstate highways and near city centers and the number is growing every month.

If you are worried about finding a station, you can get a list of stations for $6 from the Diesel Fuel Services Inc., P.O. Box 256, South Salem, N.Y. 10590. Mercedes Benz of North America offers an 8,500 - station directory for $2, available from the company at One Mercedes Drive, Montvale, N.J. 07645, Attention: Diesel Directory Service.

Here are some do's and don'ts about the diesel engine:

Don't expect the car to start up immediately. When you turn on the ignition, on some diesel cars, a light goes on to tell you a glow plug in the combustion chamber is heating. When the plug is hot enough, the light goes out and you start the car. This process can take up to 60 seconds when the temperature is 20 below zero. No wait is required when the engine is hot, however.

Don't expect extremely rapid acceleration from the diesel engine. It takes several more seconds to go from zero to 60 mph in a diesel-powered car than one with a gasoline engine.

Do expect good reliability. The diesel does not have spark plugs, points or carburetor and doesn't need tune-ups. The car may run smoother than some gas engine cars and there will be no lugging in winter and no vapor lock in summer. Driveability is excellent, with no stalling or lurching.

Do change oil in your diesel about twice as often as in gasoline-powered cars. With most diesels, if you go farther than 3,000 or 4,000 miles without fresh oil in the crankcase you can damage the bearings because some combustion products are blown into the oil by the high combustion pressures.

Do plan on unsurpassed driving range. Some diesel engine cars carry bigger than normal fuel tanks, from 20 to 27 gallons, and at 50 mph will travel up to 500 or 600 miles without a fill-up. In the city, some diesels will get from 22 to 25 mpg.

Finally, said Martens, expect the engine to clatter lightly — something like spoons in a garbage disposal — during warmup. This is normal and quickly fades away when the engine reaches operating temperature.

Safe drivers can improve

American drivers are the safest in the world, with the lowest traffic fatality rate of any nation.

But as long as there are any automobile accidents, that's "not good enough," according to Chris Kennedy, a Chrysler Corporation safety expert.

A quickly-done check of driving habits can help the average American driver rethink some driving practices, become aware of driving skills which need to be sharpened, and lower the accident rate in this country, says Kennedy.

Statistics show seventy percent of the United States drivers involved in accidents resulting in fatalities have no serious driving violations on their records. Eighty percent of those drivers have no previous accident record and were driving within the law at the time of the accident.

"We can curb serious accidents if drivers improve their skills," says Kennedy.

Kennedy suggests that drivers give themselves a test, rating their ability on each item below as excellent, average, or poor.

Do you:

Perform a weekly pre-drive check of brakes, brake lights, tires, lights, horn, windows and mirrors? Always fasten seat belt and lock doors before driving? Avoid acceleration to beat a changing light? Keep maneuvering room ahead and behind? Change lanes shortly after you see a "lane closed ahead" sign? Make sure your turn signal is noticed before changing lanes?

Tap your horn to get attention of other drivers when necessary? Glance at rear view mirror frequently? Stop smoothly and gradually whenever possible? Look for alternatives before sudden stops? Never skid or swerve? Favor the right lane on open highways? Drive the curb lane with greater caution because of slower, less predictable traffic and pedestrians? Never cut short a left turn? Make right turns into curb lanes?

Very few drivers can candidly rate themselves "excellent" on all items, says Kennedy. But by improving the skills rated average or poor, a driver can raise his "score" and decrease his chances of being involved in an accident.

Hot Honda

DETROIT (AP) — You may have to wait up to a year for delivery of Honda's Accord, the hottest foreign car to hit the U.S. market in two decades, and then you may pay $400 over list price for the privilege of waiting.

As a result, the Japanese car, which this month celebrates its first birthday here, has been the subject of charges that dealers are exploiting its popularity through price gouging.

Industry observers say they haven't seen anything like it since the 1950s, when the Volkswagen Beetle was short in supply and long in demand.

The national sales manager for American Honda Motor Co., the U.S. distributor, says he can't remember such eager buyers since the end of World War II. "I'd say there's a four - to six - month wait on the average," said Cliff Schmillen.

Nude winner

SAN DIEGO (AP)—The 1971 Miss Nude Universe says she'll spend Saturday dressed and with her Bible at the nation's only government-operated nude beach.

"As Jesus walked among the sinners, I want to walk among the nudes to describe for them the better way of life that I have found," said Susanne Haines Register, a former nightclub stripper.

Mrs. Register also is to conduct a weekend tent revival in the suburb of El Cajon.

Meanwhile, the City Council on Wednesday decided to put the question of whether nude sunbathing will continue at Black's Beach before the voters in September.

Chinatown fire

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Fire officials said an arsonist was the culprit in a four-alarm fire that raced through an abandoned Chinatown hotel.

Fire Chief Andrew Casper said no injuries were reported in the fire late Wednesday night that swept up the unoccupied Bell Hotel on Columbus Avenue.

Pleasanton to welcome its manager

PLEASANTON — The city will host a reception this month for incoming city manager Clayton Brown.

The fete will be held from 7 to 9 p.m., July 15, at Century House.

The public is invited.

The 35-year-old deputy Palo Alto city manager will begin his duties July 11, but will be on hand at the Fairgrounds July 6 when Pleasanton hosts the Alameda County Mayor's Conference.

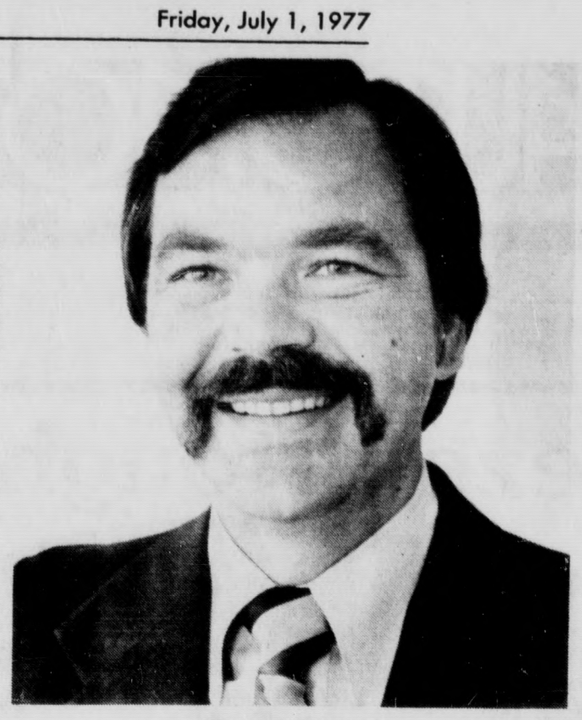
Brown served as an assistant city manager in Phoenix before moving to Palo Alto. He served on the peninsula for seven years.

He won the unanimous support of city council earlier this month, and will be paid about $33,500 his first year.

Brown holds a bachelor's degree in public administration from the University of North Dakota, and a master's degree in the same major from the University of Texas at Austin.

He went to Texas on a scholarship from the Texas City Managers' Association.

He is enthused about Pleasanton, he said, and finds it a "delightful community."



Clayton Brown

This is Livermore Day at the fair

It's Livermore Day at the County Fair today with festivities centered around the 2 p.m. Community Hour in the Court of Four Seasons and the eighth horse race, "The Livermore."

Livermore residents are encouraged to bring a picnic lunch and gather in the picnic area adjacent to the Fair administration offices on Pleasanton Avenue. A special section has been set aside at the track for Livermore race fans.

Maid of Livermore Tanya Snell and Mayor Helen Tirsell will officiate in the winner's circle after "The Livermore," which is the eighth race and slated to go off at apprximately 5 p.m.

A crowd of 7,111 attended the races Wednesday, putting forth $898,671 in parimutuel wagers. Attendance for the Fair overall and the track is still running slightly behind the record figures of 1975.

Skateboard buffs spur enterprise

PLEASANTON— One of the most popular booths at this year's Alameda County Fair has proven to be the skateboarding booth in the Market Lane area next to the Exhibit Hall.

The next time you see a skateboard, take a good look at that equipment as it offers more than just a board with four wheels on it.

And with the increasing popularity of skateboarding, equipment is expected to be refined even more in the months and years ahead.

The sport has increased so rapidly the last few years after going through a period of being dormant that skate parks are one of the latest fads to hit the sports scene.

Professionaly developed and designed, the parks offer skate board enthusiasts a safe and sane place to do their skating, practice and develop skills.

And skill is what it takes to maneuver those wheels to get them to do what the skater wants to accomplish. Once the first step of balancing and moving on the skateboard is successful, the rider of the board has unlimited possibilities for his pleasure. His imagination is his only restriction.

Already, competition runs high with divisions of slalom, down hill, and freestyle skating having pros to represent the sport.

Take for instance the chance of winning part of $50,000 in prizes in skateboard competition. "That's really not too bad," claims Russ Howell, 1976 world freestyle skateboard champion, "for a backyard sport!"

Howell will be competing in Long Beach in September for some of that prize money. Out of approximately 100 skateboard professionals in the world, only 30 qualified for this meet, which includes all divisions and styles of skateboarding.

Howell was present during the two-day auditions at the Alameda County Fairgrounds of the future Pleasanton Skate World. Information on Skate World and daily exhibitions are available at the booth on Market Lane.

The park is slated to be developed at the intersection of Highway 580 and 680 beginning the first week in July with the last week in August being the projected completion date.

According to Howell, who has been involved with freestyle skate boarding for approximately 15 years, "It's a sport whereby an individual does not have to be a certain height, weight, age, etc. to participate. It's just interest, desire and skill," he says. "It's a sport for everyone, even females."

As a former physical education teacher, Howell notes that youngsters who would never attempt a handstand or some of the stunts they perform on the skateboard. Therefore, he feels letting kids "do their own thing" helps them to build themselves physically in ways that never could be accomplished in an organized program.

Proper equipment for the sport includes more than the board itself. Helmets, gloves, knee and elbow pads and padded pants all play an important part of the sport when it comes to those contacs with the cement. The board itself can be as elaborate as the skater desires as well as specifically designed for the particular division of the the compeition he enjoys doing.

Additional questions on the skate park may be directed to Mark Lawrence of Skate World at (415) 462-0380 or (415) 969-7111.

Skateboard information is available at booth along with daily exhibitions.
